"OUTWARD BOUND" FIRST SUNSET PRODUCTION

SUTTON VANE'S
PLAY WILL BE
STAGED NOV. 21Tryouts For Mystery Play Cast
To Be Held Wednesday Afternoon

"Outward Bound," by Sutton Vane, a three act mystery dealing with the area between life and death will be the first major production of Sunset Players, according to announcement by F. T. Cloak, head of the dramatics department. It is to be presented Thursday, Nov. 21.

Tryouts for the cast will be held Wednesday afternoon from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock, in the Little Theatre.

"Outward Bound" is a comparatively modern mystery production. It met with great success when presented in London, Sept., 1923. It created a sensation when presented in Atlantic City in December of the same year, and then enjoyed a highly successful two year run in New York and Chicago.

In commenting on the play the New York Times dramatic critic said: "The climax of the first act of this extraordinary play provides the sort of thrill that comes no oftener than once in a theatrical season. A strange company of shipmates, mystified by a vaguely apprehensive feeling of unreality and uncertainty, suddenly discover that their ship is unmanned and without lights, and is gliding noiselessly across the River Styx."

The mystery has been presented only once by a college or university dramatic club, according to statement by Jack Willem, president of Sunset Players. Wisconsin university summer session students presented it during the last summer.

The cast of characters includes, Scrubby, steward on the ship, and a suicide. He is termed a "half-way," and is compelled to make the trip between life and death constantly.

Henry and Anne are a young couple who were unable to stand the criticism of their marriage, Henry being poor and Anne wealthy. They have taken gas and are half way between life and death. These may be termed as the lead roles.

Mr. Prior, a young man of 29 years, has died of drink. He is the son of Midget, a poor woman, who has died of overwork. The son has scorned the mother for more than 10 years.

Mrs. Cliveden-Banks, an English society woman, Rev. William Duke, a minister, and Mr. Lingley, an English business man, become engaged in a dispute over class distinction between Midget and themselves.

It is expected that the mystery element of the play and its general "un-usualness" of tone will be well accepted on the campus.

Dean Waterman Speaks
At Teachers' Convention

At the Central District Convention of the State Teachers' Association held at Stevens Point on Friday, Dean Carl J. Waterman of the Conservatory was speaker before the music section on the "Fundamentals of Voice Culture in Choral Singing." He also directed the singing of the entire group. David Scoular, '30, was soloist at the banquet given Friday evening at the Whiting Hotel. He was accompanied by Russell Danburg, '31.

The book store will be open daily except Saturday from 10:30 to 12:00 o'clock in the morning and from 1:00 to 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Lawrence Defeats
Northwestern, 26-6

Lawrence gridgers defeated Northwestern college, Saturday, by a score of 26 to 6. The Vikings showed a complete reversal of form over their performance against Marquette last week, and they plowed through the Watertown lads at ease.

Paul Fischl, junior triple threat man on Coach Rasmussen's squad, was easily the star of the game. He accounted for all of the local points on four touchdowns and two kicks for extra point.

Miss Achtenhagen
Is Chapel SpeakerAsks Students To Open Eyes To Miracles Of College And Campus Life

"Do not let college be a commonplace thing to you. May our eyes see and our ears hear of the many miracles about us always," Miss Olga Achtenhagen, assistant professor of English, told the student body during convocation yesterday.

Very cleverly, Miss Achtenhagen described the routine of student life, quoted from student conversation, described the dormitories and the comparative lack of zest and enthusiasm in the average student.

"It is easy to let your college become a series of mere repetitions, easy for you to walk from dormitory, to library, to chapel every day, with eyes that do not see," the speaker pointed out. Many students live in the expectation of time, waiting the arrival of a red letter day on the calendar. When the day has come and gone they are disappointed, she said. "Look upon your college experience with something of wonder and excitement at the many interesting features that surround us each day."

After describing a disorderly, but typical, dormitory room and pointing out that it was not conducive to study, Miss Achtenhagen noted the surprising lack of solitude and silence in student life. "Democracy, it has been said, is one thing, but to eat together, sleep together, wash together and study together, is another. Do not fear silence, it gives you an opportunity to be thoughtful rather than busy," she continued.

In reviewing the average dormitory student the speaker pointed out that health can't be built up during the summer and drawn upon like a bank account until Christmas time. It must be preserved and watched every day.

In examining student conduct in the library and chapel Miss Achtenhagen questioned the number of students that visit the former place to become more deeply acquainted with something more formidable than the Saturday Evening Post. The speaker called attention to the chapel building with its memorial windows, its tradition and history of student life, the thrill it has given to many who have entered it for the first time or marched out in solemn procession on commencement day.

"October, is the dawn of a new year. May our eyes see and our ears hear, for the miracles are about us always," she concluded.

Oxford Fellowship members will meet Wednesday night, at 7 o'clock, in the room of Dr. John Denyes.

Athletic Association To Get $200

Transfer of $200 from forensic board funds to the Athletic association funds was proposed by Dan Hopkinson, '31, forensic board president, and accepted at a meeting of the committee for the apportionment of all college club funds last Thursday.

Apportionment of the all college club ticket was re-accepted on the same basis as was voted last year. The representative of each organization presented a financial statement of that organization for the preceding year. Allotment was made on this basis.

"Eddie" Koch, Goodwill Student, Writes
Of His First Impressions Of Europe

Dear Friends:

It is rather difficult to realize that I have been away from America four months. So many new experiences have been mine, so many new sensations and impressions. It seems impossible that all of it could be crowded into such a short period of time. Some of the impressions and sensations I can recall very readily, especially two days of seasickness.

I sailed from the U. S. on June 22 and reached Paris, July 2, where I had the pleasure of spending an afternoon with "Blondy" and Madge Maesch, and seeing parts of Paris in their company. Everything I saw appealed to me as being old and historical; streets, rivers and age-stained buildings. I saw little boys walk down the streets carrying long narrow loaves of bread, bigger than themselves, and I wondered if the French people were particularly fond of bread crust. Because I was already late for the conference at Dresden, I could spend but one day in Paris, and so left for Germany on the morning of July 3rd and arrived at Dresden 24 hours later, tired and dirty.

Passing from France into Germany one notices at once the great contrast between the French and German people. The former are small and dark, while the latter are large and fair. The streets and cities in Germany are very clean and neatly kept while the opposite appears to be true in France. It seems rather strange that such differences should exist between two peoples living next to each other, but the contrast really is very marked. I had the peculiar feeling of being quite at home in Germany, principally because I understood the language and could make myself understood.

Dresden is a beautiful city with many parks and playgrounds. It is a musical and art center of Europe, and its famous art gallery, Ther Zuringer, is one of the best known on the continent. I had the good fortune of being guided through the various galleries by a native art student and particularly enjoyed Raphael's "Sistine Madonna". To students of art the picture is well known, but it may be interesting to those who are not acquainted with it to know that one of the principal figures of this famous painting has six fingers. I am told that it is often debated whether the artist made a mistake, or whether the person who posed for the picture actually had six fingers.

I saw my first opera in Dresden. One evening the officials of the city invited the members of the conference to attend Wagner's "Lohengrin", and I can truthfully say that I have never seen anything so gorgeous in costumes, nor heard such beautiful orchestral music. I was amazed to see the great numbers of people from the working classes who attended the performance, a condition accounted for by the fact that the Dresden opera is city owned and operated, the result being lower prices and the popularizing of really first class productions.

Later on in the week we were taken for a visit to "Hohenstein", an old castle built before 1300. A number of

SOUTHWARD BOUND

Sunset Players, Lawrence's dramatic organization is to be commended on its choice of Sutton Vane's, "Outward Bound" as the initial play production of the year. While Lawrence dramatics have always been kept upon a high plane through excellent direction and splendid presentation, it has been apparent that the majority of plays produced, have been of more or less high school caliber.

There have been exceptions to this statement, of course. It would be difficult to class such productions as "Children of the Moon", "Richelieu", and "Twelfth Night" in the high school realm of plays.

However, it is well known that many of the plays, produced at Lawrence in the last few years have been popular in high school dramatics. This fact is especially noticeable during "rushing" week, when one freshman after another, upon looking through the college yearbook, will exclaim, "Oh, I had the lead in this play when I was in high school."

"Outward Bound" is very distinctly out of the high school class. It is a most unusual play, and one which has met with instant success on London, New York and Chicago stages.

The college's first weekly evening pep meeting was a decided success, in the opinion of most everyone who attended. With about three hundred football enthusiasts present, and with seven or eight cheerleaders doing their stuff up on the stage, the affair took on the aspect of a real old fashioned pep meeting—one which should encourage any team on to victory.

It is hoped that the large attendance will continue and even increase in each meeting to come. And now—another little suggestion. Why not try to improve the caliber of the meetings with a few more songs, some new yells, and perhaps a five minute speech by a rabid Viking fan?

Inasmuch as this scheme of holding pep meetings has been adopted, let's get together and make it into something big and worth while.

Verily, verily, the boys came through and all is well with the football world. What matters it that Wisconsin was defeated, that the Cubs lost a World Series encounter, that there are only three men in the world who can understand the Einstein theory, when Lawrence came back to win a 26 to 6 victory?

It was by far a worse beating than Marquette gave us, as all those who saw the game can testify. It was no set-up either. The boys played top-notch ball and earned a win. Beloit will have trouble standing up against a team like that one which we sent down to Watertown Saturday, and the more trouble Beloit has, the better we like it.

This boy Fischl is a football player from way back, and that's all there is to it. Germany has its Graf Zeppelin, England its colonies, Russia its whiskers, but Lawrence has Fischl and long may he wave. A campaign will start shortly to run Fischl for mayor of Appleton. He can run from, for, or past anything, and we're willing to wager this two and a half dollar typewriter on that.

There are also ten other boys, or rather several combinations of tens, who seem to have a gift for running up and down a football field. Long may they all wave and fast, often, and constantly may they all run. Next Saturday starts the real opposition of the season, and from then on it's a free for all. Beloit just received an awful beating last Saturday and there's nothing like two good beatings in a row to build character. Football builds character, and it's up to the Lawrence team to build some for Beloit next Saturday. A noble purpose, and a worthy aim. May the results be as noble and worthy.

Speaking of running, the Oshkosh Teachers' College cross country team did some wonderful running last Saturday, but they preferred to run in solitude. For some reason they refused to meet the lads on the field of pursuit. Razz decided to make up for this deficiency by incorporating a cross country meet with the football game, however, so all the customers were satisfied.

Well, the presses are shrieking for copy, not to mention a few yells from the Copy Editor, so we must away. Come around and watch the football players in their native haunts during the week. The big parade starts Saturday. Reserve seats now and prepare to yell.

Sorry about that last word. It brought to mind material for another paragraph. The presses and the Copy Editor will have to continue their duel for a few minutes. The pep meeting of last Friday evening was a noble start in the right direction. Drop around every Friday night. The 10 boys and the 10 girls who yell the loudest will be admitted free of charge to the frolic and given first chance at all the rest of the girls and boys, respectively, as a reward for faithful yelling. (Incidentally, true to the hopes expressed in a recent editorial, the Sports Editor was there, in person, and had a very enjoyable time. You must come over and see us sometime.)

Lawrence Beats Northwestern College, 26-6

FISCHL LEADS ATTACK IN WIN OVER GOSLINGS

Vikings Score First In Second Quarter; Northwestern Shows Fight

Displaying an almost complete reversal of form from the previous defeat at the hands of Marquette a week ago, the Lawrence Vikings rolled little Northwestern college of Watertown under a 26-6 score Saturday.

After a listless first quarter, the Blue machine started to function in the second stanza and kept moving for the rest of the game.

Fischl Leads Attack

Paul Fischl, the veteran fullback, was the individual star of the game, accounting for all of the Viking's scores and making several sensational runs throughout the fray. Once in the second period, twice in the third, and once again in the last quarter, the Manitowoc three letter-man, showed his heels to the Lutheran tacklers.

The lone Gosling score came late in the final period, when a fumbled punt by Trankle put the pigskin on the Viking 11-yard line. The line failed to hold and Northwestern took a first down on the one yard stripe. For three downs the Blue held, but on the final down, the center bent and Stuhr carried it over.

Reserves See Action

Coach Rasmussen held his best bets in the line in reserve, giving most of the men on the sidelines an opportunity to strut their stuff before the affair was over. Voecks served as acting captain in the absence of St. Mitchell, who was out of the game due to an injury sustained in a practice session.

One of the outstanding performances in the line Saturday was the playing of Phenecie at end. Out for practice this season but three days previous to the game, and having no experience at the post before Saturday's battle, he stepped in when Jessup's leg went bad in the first half and performed nobly both on offense and defense.

In the backfield, second to Fischl's outstanding work, the playing of Gelbke was commendable. The fiery little half reeled off several long runs and off tackle smashes and nabbed several passes which put the ball in scoring position. On one occasion he retrieved the ball on a pass after it was juggled by four men and scampered all the way to the six yard stripe before being downed. After one crack at the line for a yard gain Fischl took the pill over.

Backfield Looks Good

Barnes called signals in the early minutes until forced out by a shoulder injury and then Trankle and Steinberg finished the job. The play of the backfield was comforting, with Brussat, Vedder, Rasmussen and Hales rapping off some good gains.

Although the first quarter was scoreless, Lawrence had the advantage all the way through, failing to put the ball over the line only because of having to kick against the wind and because of a few bad

Although the freshmen have two full teams, prospects are beginning to look a little brighter for the other classes now, as more players are reporting every day.

Frosh To Battle St. Norbert Here

First Game For Roachmen To Be Played at Whiting Field Friday Afternoon

Football proteges of Coach Johnny Roach will get their first taste of intercollegiate competition Friday afternoon when the Lawrence college yearlings will buck the varsity eleven of St. Norbert college of De Pere, at Whiting field. The game is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

Coach Roach has declined to state his starting lineup for the weekend fracas, but expects to give the majority of the freshmen who have been reporting to him regularly for practice, an opportunity to display their wares. The lineup will be announced later this week.

Under the direction of Coach Roach, himself a pupil of the famous Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, the Lawrence freshmen have been drilled in the Notre Dame style of attack and defense, and the boys will have their first opportunity to show their adaptability to the system against the De Pere grid outfit this weekend.

Little is known of the strength of the St. Norbert eleven, but at the DePere school, the gridiron sport has been a back number for several years.

Even though Coach Rasmussen is kept on the move with his varsity eleven, he is paying no small amount of attention to the yearlings, and he expects to draw a sizable number of these men for his varsity squad of 1930.

NOTICE

Students must present their all-college-club tickets for admission to the Beloit-Lawrence game, and at all subsequent athletic events. No student will be admitted without a ticket.

VIKINGS DEFEAT LUTHERANS 26-6

Fischl Leads Lawrence Attack, Is Second Victory Of Season

fumbles, which were frequent throughout the game as a result of the rain.

After receiving the kickoff and returning it to their own 30 yard line, the Lawrence team advanced 40 yards in four plays. Fischl made one 20 yard sprint and Barnes and Gelbke each went for 10 yards. A fumble by Gelbke lost 10 yards and a five yard penalty forced the Vikes to kick, and Northwestern was forced to do likewise when they failed to gain ground. Gelbke stepped out again on the first play after the kick was received and went for 30 yards before he was dragged down, but Vedder fumbled and Northwestern took the ball again on their own 38 yard line. Two more exchanges of punts were pulled off when neither team could penetrate the opposing defense, and the quarter ended as Northwestern punted to the Lawrence 35 yard line.

Vikings Score

After two plays in the second quarter, Fischl was again called upon to kick, and punts were exchanged freely with Lawrence gaining on every trade. Northwestern received a kick on their own 10 yard line, and a fumble gave the ball to Lawrence. Fischl plowed through for the first score of the day, making the extra point afterward. Lawrence kicked off, but the Watertown team was again forced to kick. After Rasmussen and Vedder had advanced the ball 12 yards in three plays, a penalty forced another punt and two more were exchanged, leaving the ball in Lawrence's possession on Northwestern's 40 yard line. Brussat then cut loose for a 40 yard run, being dragged down eight yards from the goal, and the half ended as Fischl carried it to the 3 yard mark.

Second Half

Rasmussen started off the second half with a bang by running the kickoff 70 yards to Northwestern's 30 yard line, and two line plays and a pass, Fischl to Rasmussen, netted 20 yards. A five yard loss and two incomplete passes found Northwestern in possession of the oval on their own 20 yard line, and another exchange of punts took place, leaving the ball on the 33 yard line from where the Lutherans kicked again. Fischl ran the ball back 25 yards to the opponents' 45 yard line, and after Brussat and Rasmussen had each pushed through the line for two yards, Northwestern took time out to think it over. The rest proved valuable to Fischl, however, and he proceeded to gallop across four markers for the second touchdown. The attempt for point failed, and the blue and white team was holding down the long end of a 13 to 0 score.

After receiving the kickoff and being thrown for losses on two plays, Northwestern punted and Lawrence advanced for 16 yards in two plays. Failure to make downs gave Northwestern the ball on their own 20 yard line, but Laird took it away from them when he recovered a fumble. Fischl again plunged over for a touchdown and the kick was good to swell the total to an even 20 points. After an exchange of punts and a 25 yard run by Fischl, the quarter ended with the ball in Lawrence hands.

Early in the last period Gelbke received a pass after it had bounced off several hands, and although Northwestern held for two downs Fischl broke through for the necessary five yards to make the last score for the winners. Fischl was taken from the game at this point, having earned a rest.

Lutherans Get Break

Two more punt exchanges took place before the break came for the losing eleven in the form of Trankle's fumble on an attempted catch of a punt. Recovery of the ball and a completed pass after a 10 yard end run brought the ball to the Lawrence one foot line where they held for one down. A quarter back sneak put it over on the next play, however, and a failure to kick the extra counter left the score at 26 to 6.

In the final minutes of the final period, the Vikings began a march down the field which fell short of a touchdown by seconds. Hales received the kick off and plowed through the opposition for 35 yards. Trankle and Vedder carried the ball to the one yards line and with Vedder all set for the final plunge, the timekeeper called time and Lawrence left the field victorious by a 26 to 6 reckoning.

Roudebush Draws Critics' Praise

In the October 11th issue of the "Music News", weekly musical magazine published in Chicago, the following review appeared on Oct. 6, after the opening concert of a series of student recitals by the Chicago Musicale college on Sunday afternoons at the Central Theatre.

"Everett Roudebush, a pupil of Moissaye Boguslawski, appeared to great advantage, making a lasting impression by his interpretation of 'La Campanella' by Paganini-Liszt."

Roudebush, '29, is a former student of John Ross Frampton, and has been studying for a Master of Music degree at the Musical College since June.

busses were chartered for the trip. As we went along the nicely kept gravel roads we saw numerous men and women out in the fields with the "overseer", or "boss", hovering about and watching them all of the time. We passed many fruit trees along the roadsides, and I am told that they also are owned by the government. People pay for the privilege of harvesting the fruit in the fall and it is said there is absolutely no stealing of the apples or plums as the case might be. I was very much impressed by the absence of automobiles, a condition which is very noticeable. We passed a number of drawn carts, however, which to me were much more interesting.

When we were still quite a distance away we could see the castle perched high upon a hill with the little medieval village of red roofed houses clustered about it. To me, having never seen a castle before, it was an awe-inspiring sight. Later on I walked in and out of the high ceiling rooms, into the large courtyard and about, almost in reverence. I never dreamed that in 1929 I'd be walking through an old medieval stronghold, built 200 years before America was even discovered! I found myself recalling every romantic medieval story I had ever heard or read.

It was while I was in Dresden that I learned whistling on the streets in the evening is considered bad manners. I was told that chewing gum showed very bad taste; only people of the lower classes chew things, other than their food. It was in Dresden, too, that I became very familiar with "Es ist verboten..."; one may do this but under no circumstances that. There certainly seems to be very little sentiment in favor of few restrictions, for everywhere one encounters "don'ts."

The time passed very quickly and soon the week and a half was over. I found myself looking forward to the time when I would be in Germany for three or four months. I wanted to get to Geneva and attend the lectures on international relations, however, and so left Dresden as soon as the conference was over. I had the good fortune of meeting Dr. Conrad Hoffmann, who is Secretary to the foreign students abroad, and with him enjoyed a beautiful scenic trip to Geneva.

Rather than to worry the editor as to whether or not he should cut this letter because of its length, I will write about my experiences in Geneva next time.
